

Emergency First Aid in Care

Emergency First Aid in Care

Overview

This course will equip staff with the basic skills and knowledge to take charge of an accident or physical illness occurring in the workplace. The course is recommended by the HSE if the workplace has more than one employee or if personnel work is small away from the central base. The focus is on preventing life threatening conditions from deteriorating. Training for the course means that the candidate are given realistic and useful skills that can be effectively used in real life. The Emergency First Aid at Work course replaced the First Aid Appointed Person course in October 2009.

Course content:

The following topics are covered in this course.

- Initiate and manage a first aid incident (incident management) prior to emergency help arriving
 - Performing CPR effectively/ treat airway/ breathing & circulation problems, managing an incident
 - Health & Safety (First Aid) regulations and priorities of First Aid
 - Treatment and management of an unconscious casualty
 - Treat medical illness, bleeding and fractures, burns and scalds and poisoning
 - Knowledge of Understanding of Symptoms and Shock
 - Common work place injuries
- Theoretical input / practical skills / practical incidents based on continual assessment

Entry Requirements:

Previously the "First Aid Appointed Person" course, the Emergency First Aid at Work course is appropriate for your organisations nominated emergency first aiders, or anyone requiring a comprehensive one day first aid course.

Assessment:

We can deliver this course on your premises, reducing costs in respect of additional time out and travelling. Our trainer will carry out on going assessments.

Qualification

On completion of the course. All delegates will receive Certificate of Attendance

Duration of course

Depending on module

Attendance Options

Days/Evenings/Weekends